QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS REGARDING

6-0-1 LAW

What state aid laws did the 6-0-1 law supersede?

The 6-0-1 law took the place of the 7 following state aid laws, all operating and running at same time:

Term extension.

Rural graded.

High school aid.

Overcrowding of elementary grades.

Equalizing fund guaranteeing 7 months.

Aid for weak schools.

Aid for negro schools.

What was the annual appropriation for schools under these 7 laws each year for the last three years of their existence?

In 1922, 1,109,000.

1923, 1,577,569.

1924, 2,510,000.

What is the 6-0-1 law?

This law guarantees teachers salaries on a basis of a schedule fixed by law for a term of seven months to every school in the state if the county or local district will run it one of these months, provided certain requirements as to enrollment and average attendance are maintained.

Why was it passed?

This law was passed to make more nearly stable school appropriations and to equalize educational opportunities. Until the passage of this law, there was no way of knowing the amount of money needed, for it was not known under which of the 7 laws the school would qualify, if under any. And some children had the chance of attending school only 40 days while their more fortunate friends in the more prosperous sections could attend an eight or nine months' term.

Upon what principle is this law based?

Taxing property and wealth wherever they are and giving the children an equal school opportunity wherever they are found.

What have been appropriations each year under this act since its passage?

The appropriation under the 6-0-1 law in 1925 was 3,009,868; in 1926 was 3,340,270; in 1927 was 3,250,000; in 1928 was 3,100,000.

(The increase each year has been less than it was any year under the seven old laws.)

What has been the increase in the number of pupils enrolled in the elementary schools since the passage of the 6-0-1 law?

The enrollment in the elementary schools in 1924 (the year before the passage of the 6-0-1 law) was 367,546 in 1927 the enrollment was 394,717, or an increase of 27,171.

What has been the increase in the high school enrollment since its passage?

The enrollment in the high school grades in 1924 (the year before the passage of the 6-0-1 law) was 37,912, in 1927 the enrollment was 46,958, or an increase of 9,046.

What was the average increase in the length of school term brought about by the passage of the 6-0-1 law?

The average length of school term the year before the passage of the 6-0-1 law, was 128 days. In 1927 it was 145 days, or an increase of 17.

From what source does the money come for operating this law?

Each county levies a 4 mill statutory tax on all its property. THE REVENUE FROM THIS 4 MILL TAX WITH THAT FROM THE 3 MILL CONSTITUTIONAL TAX IS KEPT IN THE COUNTY, WHERE IT IS COLLECTED. UNDER NO CIRCUMSTANCES DOES ANY OF THIS MONEY LEAVE THE COUNTY WHERE IT IS COLLECTED. If this revenue is not sufficient to pay the salaries of the teachers in the county for six months, the state pays this deficiency out of the state treasury.

Does any of the money derived from this 7 mill property tax go to the state treasury to be distributed as the general fund?

ABSOLUTELY NOT. THE MONEY FROM THE SEVEN MILL TAX REMAINS IN THE COUNTY WHERE IT IS COLLECTED. IF IT AMOUNTS TO MORE THAN ENOUGH TO PAY THE TEACHERS' SALARIES FOR SIX MONTHS THE BALANCE IS SPENT FOR WHATEVER THE LOCAL TRUSTEES WISH.

From what source, then, does the general fund come?

It comes from the state treasury, four-fifths of which money is derived from indirect taxes—those on tobacco, candy, soft drinks, etc. The remainder comes from the state property tax, amounting to less than 1½ mills.

Do some counties receive as much or more, state aid funds under the 6-0-1 law as they pay into the state treasury?

Yes. Every county has to pay into the state treasury a tax of 5 mills on the property in the county, for running the state government—its colleges, officers, asylums, pensions, etc., but this has no relation to the amount received from the general fund for running the schools. Every county has to contribute its pro rata share to the expense of running the state government, regardless of its school population or school needs.

Upon what basis is the 6-0-1 aid distributed?

6-0-1 aid for teachers' salaries is distributed on the basis of both enrollment and average attendance. In every case the required enrollment and average attendance are to be maintained.

Under this law why do some counties receive so much more state aid than others?

There are two reasons; first, there are a great many more children, especially white children, in school in some counties than in others, and second, the assessed valuation of the property in some counties is very much greater than in others. In a county where there is a large white population and a low assessed valuation, the amount of state aid will be much greater than in a county where the reverse condition holds. The money raised by the seven mill tax on the low assessed valuation will not nearly pay the salaries of the teachers needed for the large white child population, and the state contributes the balance needed.

Where the assessed valuation is high and the white population is scarce, the seven mill levy may raise almost enough money to pay the teachers' salaries and the state does not have to contribute much money to such a county.

What could be done to equalize the valuation of property as between counties?

A commission of nine—one from each congressional district and two from the tax commission, appointed by the governor, could equalize the property of the state as a basis for state aid—not for actually putting the property on the tax books.

For what purpose is the money appropriated under this law?

Only for paying teachers salaries for six months.

Why, then, is transportation allowed in certain cases?

Under the provisions of the 6-0-1 law, as the size of a school increases the number of pupils to the teacher increases, up to a given enrollment. Because of this, a small school can be transported to a larger one and the children absorbed in the larger one without the employment of additional teachers in the larger school. Thus there is no teacher employed at the smaller school, and a teacher's salary is saved by reason of the transportation. In this kind of case, the state department of education has allowed this money, up to $540 per teacher to be used for transportation.

What effect has this had on the small schools?

It has had the effect of closing a number of small schools and of reducing the number of teachers in some not quite so small. It has put the children from a small school into a very much larger one, thus giving them very much better educational opportunities and advantages. Allowing transportation where a teacher is saved has greatly stimulated consolidation, and saved the state money.

Should transportation have to be considered each year as a "rider" to the general appropriation bill?

No. There should be a law providing for consolidation and transportation. It should set up some clear cut regulations and carry an appropriation for the carrying out of its provisions—such appropriation to be deducted from the total appropriation of the present 6-0-1 law.

What would have been the amount spent last year if transportation had not been allowed?

$212,553.

How much was spent?

$129,926.

Due to the allowing of transportation where a teacher was saved what was the saving to the state of South Carolina under the 6-0-1 law?

$25,260.00, due to the fact that in no case was more than $540 allowed for transportation even though the salary of the teacher that was saved would have amounted to quite a bit more than this.

What would be the effect if the appropriation under the 6-0-1 law should be reduced?

One or all three things would happen, (a) teachers' salaries would be reduced, (b) the teaching load would be increased, or (c) the school term would be shortened.

What would be the outcome of this?

(a) Salaries must be such as to attract the best talent to the school room. Otherwise we shall have our best minds going into other fields and our children will be taught by the less talented and more mediocre minds.

(b) If the teaching load is greatly increased, the type of instruction will be inferior and individual attention negligible.

(c) The term is too short already. If our children are to be educated they must stay in school most of the time.

How is the legislature to know just how much money will be needed under the 6-0-1 law for the current year?

Every county superintendent can file with the state superintendent by January 15, each year an itemized statement, district by district, of the amount of money needed for the schools of his county—This can be tabulated by the state department of education ready for the legislature long before the close of the month. In this way the legislature will know exactly how much to appropriate year by year.

What safeguards are now taken to insure the accuracy of the applications requesting state aid under the 6-0-1 law?

Every statement in the reports must be sworn to by the teacher, principal or superintendent, trustees and county superintendent.
